About Noble Vision:

This gripping drama/thriller tells the story of a young neurosurgeon, Dr. David Lang (Michael Rubenstone), who develops a revolutionary procedure to repair damaged nerves. When a beautiful dancer, Nicole Hudson (Rayna Wilson), is tragically blinded in an accident, Dr. Lang is determined to help her regain her sight. But their journey is fraught with obstacles as they face a bureaucratic healthcare system and political agendas that threaten to derail their hopes.

Awards and Recognition:

- 🌟 Best Screenplay Award at the 2024 Silicon Beach Film Festival
- 🌟 Best Supporting Actor for D. Paul Thomas (Dr. Warren Lang) at the Red Movie Awards in Reims, France
- 🌟 Over 25 awards at prestigious film festivals, including Indie Fest USA International Film Festival, Queen City Film Festival, and more.

Read what people are saying:

“Within the convoluted healthcare system a doctor fights for freedom and finds love. The struggle of an artist to find her art, a surgeon to find his passion, this strips back the layers of the system to save the future.”

“This film held my attention from beginning to end. The plot has surprising twists and turns. It interweaves a beautiful romance between a doctor and a dancer with family strife, political corruption, and a huge medical breakthrough that we can only hope will happen for real one day. We see how a thirst for power can corrupt those in high places, and how that can compromise everything that falls under it, including a doctor's conscience and a patient's right to choose. So much of this is happening in real life. In the meantime, two people from two different worlds find a deep bond. The lead character, Dr. David Lang, is an innovator, a rebel, and a bit of a poet.” - Amazon Reviewer
